1. ЦЕЛИ И ЗАДАЧИ ОСВОЕНИЯ ДИСЦИПЛИНЫ

Цели освоения дисциплины «Иностранный язык»:

Повышение исходного уровня владения иностранным языком, достигнутого на предыдущей ступени образования, и овладение студентами необходимым и достаточным уровнем коммуникативной компетенции для решения социально-коммуникативных задач в различных областях бытовой, культурной, профессиональной и научной деятельности при общении с зарубежными партнерами, а также для дальнейшего самообразования.

Данная цель носит комплексный характер, и ее достижение обеспечивается достижением следующих специальных целей:

практическая цель заключается в формировании у студента готовности к межкультурной коммуникации, что предполагает развитие умений опосредованного письменного (чтение, письмо) и непосредственного устного (говорение, аудирование) иноязычного общения;

образовательная цель означает расширение кругозора студентов, повышения уровня их общей культуры и образования, а также культуры мышления, общения и речи;

развивающая цель предполагает учет личностных потребностей, интересов и индивидуальных психологических особенностей обучаемых, общее интеллектуальное развитие личности студента, развитие способности к социальному взаимодействию, повышение способности к самообразованию, развитие когнитивных и исследовательских умений;

воспитательная цель проявляется в готовности специалистов содействовать налаживанию межкультурных и научных связей, относиться с уважением к духовным ценностям других стран и народов.

Задачи:

1) формирование у студентов системы знаний об основных явлениях иностранного языка, их функционировании в иноязычной речи в качестве основы для практического применения изучаемого языка в бытовых и профессиональных ситуациях;

2) формирование системы представлений о странах изучаемого языка (география, политическое устройство, культурное наследие, традиции, система образования), воспитание чувства толерантности по отношению к другим культурам;

3) формирование и развитие творческого мышления для решения коммуникативных задач бытового и профессионального характера;

4) повышение мотивации к изучению иностранного языка как средства расширения кругозора и углубления системных знаний по профилю подготовки/специальности, и как средства самостоятельного повышения профессиональной квалификации.

Изучение иностранных языков и способность в дальнейшем использовать их в профессиональной деятельности предполагают наличие у будущих специалистов навыков работы с иноязычной специализированной литературой для самообразования и получения необходимой в профессиональной деятельности информации, умения ориентироваться в социальном, культурном и академическом контексте других стран, что предусматривает наличие у специалистов навыков повседневного (бытового) общения на иностранном языке. Профессиональные коммуникативные умения важны для участия в конференциях, подготовки презентаций выступлений, различного рода сообщений, написания научных статей, профессионального общения с иностранными коллегами. Способность и готовность говорить на иностранном языке о своей родной культуре и достижениях российских специалистов в области искусства и социальной деятельности способствует эффективной межкультурной коммуникации и формированию толерантного отношения к иным культурам.

Таким образом, важность изучения дисциплины «Иностранный язык» для будущих специалистов заключается в формировании способности к активному непосредственному и опосредованному общению в творческой, научной и профессиональной деятельности в поликультурном пространстве.

2. МЕСТО ДИСЦИПЛИНЫ В СТРУКТУРЕ ОПОП ВО

Дисциплина «Иностранный язык» в структуре ОПОП относится к обязательным дисциплинам базовой части Блока 1 (Б1.О.02.).

Реализация междисциплинарных связей в ходе обучения иностранному языку имеет целью подготовку молодых специалистов, начинающих профессиональную деятельность, к профессиональному использованию иностранного языка в различных сферах деятельности. Междисциплинарные связи реализуются в следующем:

- использование иностранного языка как средства получения профессиональной информации из иноязычных источников;
- использование научных и практических профессиональных знаний в качестве ситуативной основы для моделирования профессионального общения на занятиях;
- использование иностранного языка в целях совершенствования общей гуманитарной подготовки будущих специалистов, совершенствования мыслительных процессов, речевой и социокультурной составляющих коммуникативной компетенции.

Каждый предмет в программе обучения вносит свой специфический вклад в общее образование студента. Курс «Иностранный язык» также тесно связан с дисциплиной «Русский язык и культура речи». Обе дисциплины формируют речевые и интеллектуальные умения. В связи с этим основная функция языковых предметов – коммуникативная, хотя эти предметы имеют и образовательно-воспитательные задачи.

Образовательный аспект предполагает приобретение знаний о культуре и истории страны изучаемого языка. Поэтому связь с дисциплиной «Всеобщая история» очевидна. Эти дисциплины направлены на формирование мировоззрения студента в системе всемирной глобализации.

Изучение иностранного языка предполагает постоянное общение студента с

преподавателем и другими студентами. Поэтому знания, полученные при изучении дисциплины «Психология», находят широкое применение на занятиях иностранного языка в процессе межличностного общения.

I worked in a newspaper. One day Tripp came in and leaned on my table. Tripp was something. He was about twenty-five and looked forty. His face was covered with short, curly red hair. He was pale and unhealthy and miserable and always was borrowing money from twenty-five cents to a dollar. One dollar was his limit. When he leaned on my table he held one hand with the other to keep from shaking. Whisky.

“Well, Tripp,” said I, looking at him rather impatiently, “how is life?” He was looking more miserable than I had ever seen him.

“Have you got a dollar?” asked Tripp looking at me with his dog-like eyes.

That day I had managed to get five dollars for my Sunday story. “I have,” I said; and again I said, “I have,” more loudly, “and four besides. And I had hard work getting them. And I need them all.”

“I don’t want to borrow any,” said Tripp, “I thought you would like to get a good story. I’ve got a really fine one for you. It will probably cost you a dollar or two to get the stuff. I don’t want anything for myself.”

“What is the story?” I asked.

“It’s girl. A beauty. She has lived all her life on Long Island and never saw New York City before. I ran against her on Thirty-fourth Street. She stopped me in the street and asked me where she could find George Brown. She asked me where she could find George Brown in New York City! What do you think of that? I talked to her. It’s like this.

Some years ago George set off for New York to make his fortune. He didn’t come back. Now there is a young farmer named Dodd she is going to marry next week. But Ada – her name is Ada Lowery – couldn’t forget George, so this morning she saddled a horse and rode eight miles to the railway station to catch the 6.45 a.m. train. She came to the city to look for George.

She must have thought the first person she asked would tell her where her George was! You must see her! What could I do? She had paid her last cent for her railroad ticket. I couldn’t leave her in the street, could I? I took her to a cheap hotel. And she has to pay for the room, too. That is the price per day.”

”That’s no story,” said I. “Every ferry-boat brings or takes away girls from Long Island.”

Tripp looked disappointed. “Can’t you see what an amazing story it would make? You will get fifteen dollars for it. And it will cost you only four, so you will make a profit of eleven dollars.”

“How will it cost me four dollars?” I asked suspiciously.

“One dollar for her room and two dollars to pay the girl’s fare back home.”

“And the fourth?” I asked.

“One dollar to me,” said Tripp. “Don’t you see,” he insisted, “That the girl has to get back home today?”

And then I began to feel what is known as the sense of duty. In a kind of cold anger I put on my coat and hat. But I swore to myself that Tripp wouldn’t get the dollar...

Задание 9. Прочитайте и письменно переведите текст.

The honeymoon was at its full. There was a flat with the reddest of new carpets, tasseled portieres and six steins with pewter lids arranged on a ledge above the wainscoting of the dining-room. The wonder of it was yet upon them. Neither of them had ever seen a yellow primrose by the river's brim; but if such a sight had met their eyes at that time it would have seemed like - well, whatever the poet expected the right kind of people to see in it besides a primrose.

The bride sat in the rocker with her feet resting upon the world. She was wrapt in rosy dreams and a kimono of the same hue. She wondered what the people in Greenland and Tasmania and Beloochistan were saying one to another about her marriage to Kid McGarry. Not that it made any difference. There was no welterweight from London to the Southern Cross that could stand up four hours - no; four rounds - with her bridegroom. And he had been hers for three weeks; and the crook of her little finger could sway him more than the fist of any 142- pounder in the world.

Love, when it is ours, is the other name for self- abnegation and sacrifice. When it belongs to people across the airshaft it means arrogance and self-con- ceit.

The bride crossed her oxfords and looked thought- fully at the distemper Cupids on the ceiling. "Precious," said she, with the air of Cleopatra asking Antony for Rome done up in tissue paper and delivered at residence, "I think I would like a peach."

Kid McGarry arose and put on his coat and hat. He was serious, shaven, sentimental, and spry.

"All right," said he, as coolly as though he were only agreeing to sign articles to fight the champion of England. "I'll step down and cop one out for you see?"

"Don't be long," said the bride. "I'll be lonesome without my naughty boy. Get a nice, ripe one." After a series of farewells that would have befitted an imminent voyage to foreign parts, the Kid went down to the street.

Here he not unreasonably hesitated, for the season was yet early spring, and there seemed small chance of wresting anywhere from those chill streets and stores the coveted luscious guerdon of summer's golden prime.

At the Italian's fruit-stand on the corner he stopped and cast a contemptuous eye over the display of papered oranges, highly polished apples and wan, sun-hungry bananas.

"Gotta da peach?" asked the Kid in the tongue of Dante, the lover of lovers.

"Ah, no, - "sighed the vender. "Not for one mont com- a d peach. Too soon. Gotta da nice- a orange. Like- a da orange?"

Scornful, the Kid pursued his quest. He entered the all-nigh chop-house, cafe, and bowling-alley of his friend and admirer, Justus O'Callahan. The O'Callahan was about in his institution, looking for leaks.

"I want it straight," said the Kid to him. "The old woman has got a hunch that she wants a peach. Now, if you've got a peach, Cal, get it out quick. I want it and others like it if you've got 'em in plural quantities."

"The house is yours," said O'Callahan. "But there's no peach in it. It's too soon. I don't sup- pose you could even find 'em at one of the Broadway joints. That's too bad. When a lady fixes her mouth for a certain kind of fruit nothing else won't do. It's too late now to find any of the first-class fruiterers open. But if you think the missis would like some nice oranges I've just got a box of fine ones in that she might."

"Much obliged, Cal. It's a peach proposition right from the ring of the gong. I'll try further."

The time was nearly midnight as the Kid walked down the West-Side avenue. Few stores were open and such as were practically hooted at the idea of a peach.

But in her moated flat the bride confidently awaited her Persian fruit. A champion welter-weight not find a peach? - not stride triumphantly over the seasons and the zodiac and the almanac to fetch an Amsden's June or a Georgia cling to his own-own?

The Kid's eye caught sight of a window that was lighted and gorgeous with nature's most entrancing colors. The light suddenly went out. The Kid sprinted and caught the fruiterer locking his door.

"Peaches?" said he, with extreme deliberation.

"Well, no, Sir. Not for three or four weeks yet. I haven't any idea where you might find some. There may be a few in town from under the glass, but they'd be bard to locate. Maybe at one of the more expensive hotels - some place where there's plenty of money to waste. I've got some very fine oranges, though - from a shipload that came in to-day."

The Kid lingered on the corner for a moment, and then set out briskly toward a pair of green lights that flanked the steps of a building down a dark side street.

"Captain around anywhere?" he asked of the desk sergeant of the police station.

At that moment the captain came briskly forward from the rear. He was in plain clothes and had a busy air.

"Hello, Kid," he said to the pugilist. "Thought you were bridaltouring?"

"Got back yesterday. I'm a solid citizen now. Think I'll take an interest in municipal doings. How would it suit you to get into Denver Dick's place to- night, Cap?"

"Past performances," said the captain, twisting his moustache.

"Denver was closed up two months ago."

"Correct," said the Kid. "Rafferty chased him out of the Fortythird. He's running in your precinct now, and his game's bigger than ever. I'm down on this gambling business. I can put you against his game."

"In my precinct?" growled the captain. "Are you sure, Kid? I'll take it as a favor. Have you got the entree? How is it to be done?"

"Hammers," said the Kid. "They haven't got any steel on the doors yet. You'll need ten men. No, they won't let me in the place. Denver has been trying to do me. He thought I tipped him off for the other raid. I didn't, though. You want to hurry. I've got to get back home. The house is only three blocks from here."

Before ten minutes had sped the captain with a dozen men stole with their guide into the hallway of a dark and virtuous-looking building in which many businesses were conducted by day.

"Third floor, rear," said the Kid, softly. "I'll lead the way."

Two axemen faced the door that he pointed out to them.

"It seems all quiet," said the captain, doubtfully.

"Are you sure your tip is straight?"

"Cut away!" said the Kid. "It's on me if it ain't."

The axes crashed through the as yet unprotected door. A blaze of light from within poured through the smashed panels. The door fell, and the raiders rang into the room with their guns handy.

The big room was furnished with the gaudy magnificence dear to Denver Dick's western ideas. Various well-patronized games were in progress. About fifty men who were in the room rushed upon the police in a grand break for personal liberty. The plain- clothes men had to do a little club-swinging. More than half the patrons escaped.

Denver Dick had graced his game with his own presence that night. He led the rush that was intended to sweep away the smaller body of raiders, but when he saw the Kid his manner became personal. Being in the heavyweight class he cast himself joy- fully upon his slighter enemy, and they rolled down a flight of stairs in each other's arms. On the landing they separated and arose, and then the Kid was able to use some of his professional tactics, which had been useless to him while in the excited clutch of a 200-pound sporting gentleman who was about to lose $20,000 worth of paraphernalia.

After vanquishing his adversary the Kid hurried upstairs and through the gambling-room into a smaller apartment connecting by an arched doorway.

Here was a long table set with choicest chinaware and silver, and lavishly furnished with food of that expensive and spectacular sort of which the devotees of sport are supposed to be fond. Here again was to be perceived the liberal and florid taste of the gentleman with the urban cognomenal prefix.

A No. 10 patent leather shoe protruded a few of its inches outside the tablecloth along the floor. The Kid seized this and plucked forth a black man in a white tie and the garb of a servitor.

"Get up!" commanded the Kid. "Are you in charge of this free lunch?"

"Yes, sah, I was. Has they done pinched us ag'in, boss?"

“Looks that way. Listen to me. Are there any peaches in this layout? If there ain’t I’ll have to throw up the sponge.”

“There was three dozen, sah, when the game opened this evenin’; but I reckon the gentlemen done eat ‘em all up. If you’d like to eat a frustrate orange, sah, I kin find you some.”

“Get busy,” ordered the Kid, sternly, and move whatever peach crop you’ve got quick or there’ll be trouble. If anybody oranges me again to-night, I’ll knock his face off.”

The raid on Denver Dick’s high-priced and prodigal luncheon revealed one lone, last peach that had escaped the epicurean jaws of the followers of chance. Into the Kid’s pocket it went, and that indefatigable forager departed immediately with his prize. With scarcely a glance at the scene on the sidewalk below, where the officers were loading their prisoners into the patrol wagons, he moved homeward with long, swift strides.

His heart was light as he went. So rode the knights back to Camelot after perils and high deeds done for their ladies fair. The Kid’s lady had com- manded him and he had obeyed. True, it was but a peach that she had craved; but it had been no small deed to glean a peach at midnight from that wintry city where yet the February snows lay like iron. She had asked for a peach; she was his bride; in his pocket the peach was warming in his hand that held it for fear that it might fall out and be lost.

On the way the Kid turned in at an all-night drug store and said to the spectacled clerk:

“Say, sport, I wish you’d size up this rib of mine and see if it’s broke. I was in a little scrap and bumped down a flight or two of stairs.”

The druggist made an examination. “It isn’t broken,” was his diagnosis, “but you have a bruise there that looks like you’d fallen off the Flatiron twice.”

“That’s all right,” said the Kid. “Let’s have your clothesbrush, please.”

The bride waited in the rosy glow of the pink lamp shade. The miracles were not all passed away. By breathing a desire for some slight thing - a flower, a pomegranate, a - oh, yes, a peach - she could send forth her man into the night, into the world which could not withstand him, and he would do her bidding.

And now he stood by her chair and laid the peach in her hand.

“Naughty boy!” she said, fondly. “Did I say a peach? I think I would much rather have had an orange.”

Blest be the bride.

Miss Lynnette D'Armande turned her back on Broadway. This was but tit for tat, because Broadway had often done the same thing to Miss D'Armande.

Still, the "tats" seemed to have it, for the ex-leading lady of the "Reaping the Whirlwind" company had everything to ask of Broadway, while there was no vice-versa.

So Miss Lynnette D'Armande turned the back of her chair to her window that overlooked Broadway, and sat down to stitch in time the lisle-thread heel of a black silk stocking.

The tumult and glitter of the roaring Broadway beneath her window had no charm for her; what she greatly desired was the stifling air of a dressing-room on that fairyland street and the roar of an audience gathered in that capricious quarter.

In the meantime, those stockings must not be neglected. Silk does wear out so, but after all, isn't it just the only goods there is?

The Hotel Thalia looks on Broadway as Marathon looks on the sea. It stands like a gloomy cliff above the whirlpool where the tides of two great thorough-fares clash.

Here the player-bands gather at the end of their wanderings, to loosen the buskin and dust the sock. Thick in the streets around it are booking-offices, theatres, agents, schools, and the lobsterpalaces to which those thorny paths lead.

Wandering through the eccentric halls of the dim and fusty Thalia, you seem to have found yourself in some great ark or caravan about to sail, or fly, or roll away on wheels.

About the house lingers a sense of unrest, of expectation, of transiency, even of anxiety and apprehension. The halls are a labyrinth. Without a guide, you wander like a lost soul in a Sam Loyd puzzle. Turning any corner, a dressing-sack or a cul-de-sac may bring you up short. You meet alarming tragedians stalking in bath-ropes in search of rumored bathrooms.

From hundreds of rooms come the buzz of talk, scraps of new and old songs, and the ready laughter of the convened players.

Summer has come; their companies have disbanded, and they take their rest in their favorite caravansary, while they besiege the managers for engagements for the coming season.

At this hour of the afternoon the day's work of tramping the rounds of the agents' offices is over. Past you, as you ramble distractedly through the mossy halls, flit audible visions of houris, with veiled, starry eyes, flying tag-ends of things and a swish of silk, bequeathing to the dull hallways an odor of gaiety and a memory of frangipanni.

Serious young comedians, with versatile Adam's apples, gather in doorways and talk of Booth. Far-reaching from somewhere comes the smell of ham and red cabbage, and the crash of dishes on the American plan.

The indeterminate hum of life in the Thalia is enlivened by the discreet popping — at reasonable and salubrious intervals — of beer-bottle corks. Thus punctuated, life in the genial hostel scans easily — the comma being the favorite mark, semicolons frowned upon, and periods barred.

Miss D'Armannde's room was a small one. There was room for her rocker between the dresser and the wash-stand if it were placed longitudinally.

On the dresser were its usual accoutrements, plus the exleading lady's collected souvenirs of road engagements and photographs of her dearest and best professional friends.

At one of these photographs she looked twice or thrice as she darned, and smiled friendlily.

"I'd like to know where Lee is just this minute," she said, half aloud.

If you had been privileged to view the photograph thus flattered, you would have thought at the first glance that you saw the picture of a many-petalled white flower, blown through the air by a storm. But the floral kingdom was not responsible for that swirl of petalous whiteness.

You saw the filmy, brief skirt of Miss Rosalie Ray as she made a complete heels-over-head turn in her wistaria-entwined swing, far out from the stage, high above the heads of the audience.

You saw the camera's inadequate representation of the graceful, strong kick, with which she, at this exciting moment, sent flying, high and far, the yellow silk garter that each evening spun from her agile limb and descended upon the delighted audience below.

You saw, too, amid the black-clothed, mainly masculine patrons of select vaudeville a hundred hands raised with the hope of staying the flight of the brilliant aerial token. Forty weeks of the best circuits this act had brought Miss Rosalie Ray, for each of two years.

She did other things during her twelve minutes — a song and dance, imitations of two or three actors who are but imitations of themselves, and a balancing feat with a step-ladder and feather duster; but when the blossom-decked swing was let down from the flies, and Miss Rosalie sprang smiling into the seat, with the golden circlet conspicuous in the place whence it was soon to slide and become a soaring and coveted guerdon — then it was that the audience rose in its seat as a single man — or presumably so — and indorsed the specialty that made Miss Ray’s name a favorite in the booking-offices.

At the end of the two years Miss Ray suddenly announced to her dear friend, Miss D’Armande, that she was going to spend the summer at an antediluvian village on the north shore of Long Island, and that the stage would see her no more.

Seventeen minutes after Miss Lynnette D’Armande had expressed her wish to know the whereabouts of her old chum, there were sharp raps at her door.

Doubt not that it was Rosalie Ray. At the shrill command to enter she did so, with something of a tired flutter, and dropped a heavy hand-bag on the floor.

Upon my word, it was Rosalie, in a loose, travel-stained automobileless coat, closely tied brown veil with yard-long, flying ends, gray walking-suit and tan oxfords with lavender overgaiters.

When she threw off her veil and hat, you saw a pretty enough face, now flushed and disturbed by some unusual emotion, and restless, large eyes with discontent marring their brightness.

A heavy pile of dull auburn hair, hastily put up, was escaping in crinkly, waving strands and curling, small locks from the confining combs and pins.

The meeting of the two was not marked by the effusion vocal, gymnastical, osculatory and catechetical that distinguishes the greetings of their unprofessional sisters in society. There was a brief clinch, two simultaneous labial dabs and they stood on the same footing of the old days.

Very much like the short salutations of soldiers or of travelers in foreign wilds are the welcomes between the strollers at the corners of their crisscross roads.

“I’ve got the hall-room two flights up above yours,” said Rosalie, “but I came straight to see you before going up. I didn’t know you were here till they told me.”

“I’ve been in since the last of April,” said Lynnette. “And I’m going on the road with a ‘Fatal Inheritance’ company. We open next week in Elizabeth. I thought you’d quit the stage, Lee. Tell me about yourself.”

Rosalie settled herself with a skilful wriggle on the top of Miss D’Armande’s wardrobe trunk, and leaned her head against the papered wall. From long habit, thus can peripatetic leading ladies and their sisters make themselves as comfortable as though the deepest armchairs embraced them.

“I’m going to tell you, Lynn,” she said, with a strangely sardonic and yet carelessly resigned look on her youthful face. “And then tomorrow I’ll strike the old Broadway trail again, and wear some more paint off the chairs in the agents’ offices. If anybody had told me any time in the last three months up to four o’clock this afternoon that I’d ever listen to that ‘Leave-your-name-and-address’ rot of the booking bunch again, I’d have given ‘em the real Mrs. Fiske laugh. Loan me a handkerchief, Lynn. Gee! but those Long Island trains are fierce. I’ve got enough soft-coal cinders on my face to go on and play Topsy without using the cork. And, speaking of corks — got anything to drink, Lynn?”

Miss D’Armande opened a door of the wash-stand and took out a bottle.

“Oh, pass the bottle. Save the glass for company. Thanks! That hits the spot. The same to you. My first drink in three months!”

“Yes, Lynn, I quit the stage at the end of last season. I quit it because I was sick of the life. And especially because my heart and soul were sick of men of the kind of men we stage people have to be up against.

You know what the game is to us — it’s a fight against ‘em all the way down the line from the manager who wants us to try his new motor-car to the bill-posters who want to call us by our front names.

“And the men we have to meet after the show are the worst of all. The stage-door kind, and the manager’s friends who take us to supper and show their diamonds and talk about seeing ‘Dan’ and ‘Dave’ and ‘Charlie’ for us. They’re beasts, and I hate ‘em. “I tell you, Lynn, it’s the girls like us on the stage that ought to be pitied.

It's girls from good homes that are honestly ambitious and work hard to rise in the profession, but never do get there. You bear a lot of sympathy sloshed around on chorus girls and their fifteen dollars a week. Piffle! There ain't a sorrow in the chorus that a lobster cannot heal.

"If there's any tears to shed, let 'em fall for the actress that gets a salary of from thirty to forty-five dollars a week for taking a leading part in a bum show. She knows she'll never do any better; but she hangs on for years, hoping for the 'chance I that never comes.

"And the fool plays we have to work in! Having another girl roll you around the stage by the hind legs in a 'Wheelbarrow Chorus' in a musical comedy is dignified drama compared with the idiotic things I've had to do in the thirty-centers.

"But what I hated most was the men – the men leering and blathering at you across tables, trying to buy you with Wurzburger or Extra Dry, according to their estimate of your price.

And the men in the audiences, clapping, yelling, snarling, crowding, writhing, gloating – like a lot of wild beasts, with their eyes fixed on you, ready to eat you up if you come in reach of their claws. Oh, how I hate 'em! "Well, I'm not telling you much about myself, am I, Lynn?

"I had two hundred dollars saved up, and I cut the stage the first of the summer. I went over on Long Island and found the sweetest little village that ever was, called Soundport, right on the water. I was going to spend the summer there, and study up on elocution, and try to get a class in the fall.

There was an old widow lady with a cottage near the beach who sometimes rented a room or two just for company, and she took me in. She had another boarder, too – the Reverend Arthur Lyle.

"Yes, he was the head-liner. You're on, Lynn. I'll tell you all of it in a minute. It's only a one-act play. "The first time he walked on, Lynn, I felt myself going; the first lines he spoke, he had me. He was different from the men in audiences.

He was tall and slim, and you never heard him come in the room, but you felt him. He had a face like a picture of a knight – like one of that Round Table bunch – and a voice like a 'cello solo. And his manners!

"Lynn, if you'd take John Drew in his best drawing-room scene and compare the two, you'd have John arrested for disturbing the peace.

"I'll spare you the particulars; but in less than a month Arthur and I were engaged. He preached at a little one-night stand of a Methodist church. There was to be a parsonage the size of a lunchwagon, and hens and honeysuckles when we were married.

Arthur used to preach to me a good deal about Heaven, but he never could get my mind quite off those honey-suckles and hens.

"No; I didn't tell him I'd been on the stage. I hated the business and all that went with it; I'd cut it out forever, and I didn't see any use of stirring things up. I was a good girl, and I didn't have anything to confess, except being an elocutionist, and that was about all the strain my conscience would stand.

"Oh, I tell you, Lynn, I was happy. I sang in the choir and attended the sewing society, and recited that 'Annie Laurie' thing with the whistling stunt in it, 'in a manner bordering upon the professional,' as the weekly village paper reported it.

And Arthur and I went rowing, and walking in the woods, and clamming, and that poky little village seemed to me the best place in the world. I'd have been happy to live there always, too, if –

"But one morning old Mrs. Gurley, the widow lady, got gossipy while I was helping her string beans on the back porch, and began to gush information, as folks who rent out their rooms usually do. Mr. Lyle was her idea of a saint on earth — as he was mine, too.

She went over all his virtues and graces, and wound up by telling me that Arthur had had an extremely romantic love-affair, not long before, that had ended unhappily. She didn't seem to be on to the details, but she knew that he had been hit pretty hard.

He was paler and thinner, she said, and he had some kind of a remembrance or keepsake of the lady in a little rosewood box that he kept locked in his desk drawer in his study. "Several times," says she, "I've seen him gloomerin' over that box of evenings, and he always locks it up right away if anybody comes into the room."

“Well, you can imagine how long it was before I got Arthur by the wrist and led him down stage and hissed in his ear. “That same afternoon we were lazing around in a boat among the water lilies at the edge of the bay.

““Arthur,’ says I, ‘you never told me you’d had another love affair. But Mrs. Gurley did,’ I went on, to let him know I knew. I hate to bear a man lie.

““Before you came,’ says he, looking me frankly in the eye, ‘there was a previous affection - a strong one. Since you know of it, I will be perfectly candid with you.’

““I am waiting,’ says I.

““My dear Ida,’ says Arthur – of course I went by my real name, while I was in Soundport – ‘this former affection was a spiritual one, in fact. Although the lady aroused my deepest sentiments, and was, as I thought, my ideal woman, I never met her, and never spoke to her. It was an ideal love. My love for you, while no less ideal, is different. You wouldn’t let that come between us.’

““Was she pretty?’ i asked.

““She was very beautiful,’ said Arthur.

““Did you see her often?’ I asked.

““Something like a dozen times,’ says he.

““Always from a distance?’ says I.

““Always from quite a distance,’ says he.

““And you loved her?’ I asked.

““She seemed my ideal of beauty and grace – and soul,” says Arthur.

““And this keepsake that you keep under lock and key, and moon over at times, is that a remembrance from her?”

““A memento,’ says Arthur, ‘that I have treasured.’

““Did she send it to you?”

““It came to me from her’ says he.

““In a roundabout way?’ I asked.

““Somewhat roundabout,’ says he, ‘and yet rather direct.’

““Why didn’t you ever meet her?’ I asked. ‘Were your positions in life so different?’

““She was far above me,’ says Arthur. ‘Now, Ida,’ he goes on, ‘this is all of the past. You’re not going to be jealous, are you?’

‘Jealous!’ says I. ‘Why, man, what are you talking about? It makes me think ten times as much of you as I did before I knew about it.’

“And it did, Lynn - if you can understand it. That ideal love was a new one on me, but it struck me as being the most beautiful and glorious thing I’d ever heard of. Think of a man loving a woman he’d never even spoken to, and being faithful just to what his mind and heart pictured her!

Oh, it sounded great to me. The men I’d always known come at you with either diamonds, knock-out-drops or a raise of salary, – and their ideals! – well, we’ll say no more.”

“Yes, it made me think more of Arthur than I did before. I couldn’t be jealous of that far-away divinity that he used to worship, for I was going to have him myself. And I began to look upon him as a saint on earth, just as old lady Gurley did.

“About four o’clock this afternoon a man came to the house for Arthur to go and see somebody that was sick among his church bunch. Old lady Gurley was taking her afternoon snore on a couch, so that left me pretty much alone.

In passing by Arthur’s study I looked in, and saw his bunch of keys hanging in the drawer of his desk, where he’d forgotten ‘em. Well, I guess we’re all to the Mrs. Bluebeard now and then, ain’t we, Lynn?

I made up my mind I’d have a look at that memento he kept so secret. Not that I cared what it was – it was just curiosity.

“While I was opening the drawer I imagined one or two things it might be. I thought it might be a dried rosebud she’d dropped down to him from a balcony, or maybe a picture of her he’d cut out of a magazine, she being so high up in the world.

"I opened the drawer, and there was the rosewood casket about the size of a gent's collar box. I found the little key in the bunch that fitted it, and unlocked it and raised the lid.

"I took one look at that memento, and then I went to my room and packed my trunk. I threw a few things into my grip, gave my hair a flirt or two with a side-comb, put on my hat, and went in and gave the old lady's foot a kick. I'd tried awfully hard to use proper and correct language while I was there for Arthur's sake, and I had the habit down pat, but it left me then.

"Stop sawing gourds," says I, "and sit up and take notice. The ghost's about to walk. I'm going away from here, and I owe you eight dollars. The expressman will call for my trunk." "I handed her the money.

"Dear me, Miss Crosby!" says she. "Is anything wrong? I thought you were pleased here. Dear me, young women are so hard to understand, and so different from what you expect 'em to be."

"You're damn right," says I. "Some of 'em are. But you can't say that about men. When you know one man you know 'em all! That settles the human race question."

"And then I caught the four-thirty-eight, soft-coal unlimited; and here I am."

"You didn't tell me what was in the box, Lee," said Miss D'Armande, anxiously.

"One of those yellow silk garters that I used to kick off my leg into the audience during that old vaudeville swing act of mine. Is there any of the cocktail left, Lynn?"

7.5. Методические указания и материалы по видам занятий

Изучение дисциплины «Иностранный язык» является неотъемлемой составной частью подготовки студентов различного профиля, призванных в соответствии с требованиями Государственного стандарта достичь уровня владения иностранным языком, позволяющего им продолжать обучение и вести профессиональную деятельность в иноязычной среде.

Задачи курса включают развитие языковой, речевой и социокультурной компетенции, т.е. овладение системой иностранного языка в целях бытового, научного и профессионального общения, протекающего в контакте с представителями иной культуры.

Все это предопределяет использование таких методов преподавания, которые позволяют сочетать системное овладение материалом, характерное для обучения в отрыве от естественной языковой среды, с коммуникативным подходом, подразумевающим использование разных видов условных ситуаций, имитирующих как бытовое, так и профессиональное и научное общение.

В обучении используются современные активные методы, стимулирующие познавательную и творческую деятельность студента.

В настоящее время перед высшей школой поставлены новые цели, достигнуть которые можно лишь путем творческого подхода к сочетанию традиционных и новых методов и форм обучения, которые формировали бы творческих, знающих специалистов, способных самостоятельно решать сложные профессиональные и научные проблемы.

Активное развивающее обучение позволяет формировать творческое мышление студента, готовое к поиску решения проблем, связанных с профессиональной сферой деятельности, а также с саморазвитием личности.

На занятиях используются следующие формы работы: индивидуальная, парная, в мини-группах, групповая. Такие формы работы зарекомендовали себя как наиболее эффективные в плане отработки нового материала, возможности применять усвоенные ранее знания и трансформировать их. На основе данных форм работы осуществляется процесс поиска и получения новых знаний и выработки новых умений.

Действенным способом повышения мотивации и интереса к занятиям по дисциплине «Иностранный язык» является профессионально-ориентированный подход к изучению иностранного языка, который предполагает формирование способности иноязычного общения в конкретных профессиональных, деловых и научных сферах и ситуациях.

Для погружения студентов в контекст профессиональной деятельности преподаватели используют следующие виды деятельности: дискуссии на основе аутентичных профессионально-ориентированных текстов или аудио-/видеоматериалов, коммуникативные ролевые игры, решение профессионально-ориентированных кейсов, подготовка презентаций на различные профессиональные темы.

Отбор учебных материалов и образовательных технологий осуществляется преподавателем с учетом языковой подготовки конкретной группы студентов и их направления подготовки. Важно то, чтобы учебные материалы были аутентичными (допускается адаптация по языковому уровню), современными и визуальными, а использование информационно-коммуникационных технологий способно обеспечить моделирование ситуаций профессиональной коммуникации в рамках аудиторного занятия.

Ведущей задачей, стоящей перед преподавателем иностранного языка, является реализация комплексного подхода к развитию речевых умений: чтение и аудирование разнообразных аутентичных текстов, а также монологическая и диалогическая устная и письменная речь в рамках профессиональной сферы.

Работу над определенной профессионально-ориентированной темой можно представить определенными этапами.

На первом этапе организуется работа с оригинальным печатным текстом, который для студентов представляет не только ценность в профессиональном содержании, но и является источником профессиональной лексики и терминологии. Работа с текстом включает обсуждение содержания, выполнение лексических заданий, обсуждение тем, затронутых в текстах.

Далее работу над темой можно продолжить просмотром аутентичного видеофрагмента с последующим обсуждением.

Продуктивная монологическая речь может развиваться через подготовку презентаций (устная речь) и написание рецензий, аннотаций, эссе (письменная речь) на профессиональные темы. Творческие практико-ориентированные задания позволяют отработать использование тематической лексики, изученных грамматических конструкций и применить свои профессиональные навыки.

Формирование грамматической компетенции является неотъемлемой частью формирования коммуникативной компетенции в целом. Этим объясняется ориентированность на обучение коммуникативной грамматике. Критериями отбора грамматических явлений являются их частотность и функционирование в бытовых и профессионально-значимых ситуациях. Алгоритм формирования коммуникативной грамматической компетенции состоит из четырех этапов: 1) презентация, 2) языковая практика, 3) коммуникативная практика, 4) контроль. Введение изучаемого грамматического материала начинается с его презентации в адекватном контексте. Во время языковой практики внимание обучаемых акцентируется на функции и форме изучаемого грамматического явления, что способствует формированию грамматического навыка. Коммуникативная практика направлена на развитие и совершенствование коммуникативных грамматических навыков и умений. Итогом работы является сформированность грамматических навыков и умений в процессе обучения, уровень которой определяется тестированием во время контрольных мероприятий.

Таким образом, основными принципами отбора учебного материала и заданий являются практико-ориентированность и интеграция с будущей профессиональной сферой студентов, аутентичность, сочетание устных и письменных заданий рецептивного и продуктивного характера, элементы творчества и эдьютейнмента.

Самостоятельная работа по повышению уровня владения иностранным языком чаще всего связана с чтением текстов из учебной, страноведческой, научно-популярной и научной литературы, периодических изданий и справочной литературы. Во время чтения студент может выполнять задания, предложенные преподавателем или выполнять конспектирование информации, необходимой для изучения других дисциплин. Также самостоятельная работа студента по заданию преподавателя, выполняемая во внеаудиторное время, может осуществляться с помощью мультимедийных средств обучения.

Методические рекомендации преподавателям для работы со студентами с ограниченными возможностями здоровья по изучению дисциплины «Иностранный язык».

Преподаватели должны быть ознакомлены с психофизическими особенностями обучающихся с ограниченными возможностями здоровья и учитывать их при организации образовательного процесса. Преподаватель выстраивает индивидуальную траекторию обучения с помощью здоровьесберегательных технологий.

При организации образовательного процесса со слабослышащей аудиторией необходима особая фиксация на артикуляции выступающего – следует говорить громче и четче. Для лучшего усвоения материала необходимо либо записывать ключевые моменты, либо использовать презентации на интерактивной доске. В процессе обучения студентов с нарушениями слуха иностранному языку в рамках инклюзивного образования стоит учитывать, что чтение и письмо являются для слабослышащих студентов не только навыками владения языком, но и основными, важными средствами обучения и контроля уровня усвоения знаний. Поэтому учебный курс должен включать в себя достаточное количество текстового материала и письменных упражнений, содержать правила с примерами в письменной форме.

Для усвоения информации слабовидящим требуется большее количество повторений и тренировок. Слабовидящим следует разрешить использовать звукозаписывающие устройства и компьютеры, как способ конспектирования, во время занятий. Информацию необходимо представлять исходя из специфики слабовидящего студента: крупный шрифт, аудиофайлы. Всё записанное на доске должно быть озвучено.

При общении с людьми, испытывающими затруднения в речи, не следует подчеркнуто перебивать и поправлять их. Необходимо быть готовым к тому, что разговор с человеком с затрудненной речью займет больше времени.

Преподаватель должен проявлять педагогический такт, создавать ситуации успеха для студентов с ОВЗ, своевременно оказывать им помощь, развивать веру в собственные силы и возможности.
